Trimble child sex crime case

Courier staff report

A Trimble County man has been charged with sodomy and another sex crime in connection with an investigation by the Kentucky State Police last week.

Dustin W. Lambert, 26, of Milton, was arrested Thursday, Nov. 14 and is in the Carroll County Regional Detention Center in Carrollton, Kentucky, where he is being held without bond.

State police received a complaint that there was video evidence showing Lambert abusing a minor in a sexual manner. Police executed a warrant to search Lambert's phone and found the video as well as other photo evidence supporting the complaint, KSP Sgt. Dusty Corbin said.

Corbin said police spoke to Lambert about the allegations and ultimately placed him under arrest Nov. 14.

Lambert is charged with first-degree sodomy of a person under the age of 12, a Class A felony punishable by 20 to 50 years in prison, and use of a minor less than 16 years old in a sexual performance, a Class B felony punishable by 10 to 20 years in prison.

The case remains under ongoing investigation. Lambert is scheduled for a preliminary hearing at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26, in Trimble County Circuit Court in Bedford, Kentucky.

Firearm, drug charges put Michael Bowen back in jail

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A former Madison man who has had several run-ins with local law enforcement on charges ranging from public intoxication to drugs, to battery and criminal recklessness causing bodily injury, is back in the Jefferson County Jail on weapon and drug charges.

Michael Wayne Bowen, 31, whose address is now listed as Bloomington, Indiana, was arrested Tuesday, Nov. 5, in the parking lot of Walmart and charged with possession of a firearm by a dangerous felon, carrying a handgun without a license, possession of methamphetamine, possession of a syringe and visiting a common nuisance.

Michael Bowen

Alesia Thompson

Bowen was 18 when he passed out while huffing an aerosol inhalant in July 2006 before driving his car through a crowd at the Madison Regatta and into the Ohio River, seriously injuring numerous spectators. He also has faced battery charges, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and disorderly conduct charges as well as charges of dealing in methamphetamine and meth possession since serving a prison sentence for the Regatta incident. His most recent charge was possession of methamphetamine in February, 2019, in Jennings County. Bowen has served jail time three or more times since he was 18 years old and been to prison three times.

The most serious charge he faces in the Nov. 5 arrest, possession of a firearm by a dangerous felon, is a Level 4 felony punishable by up to 12 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine. The handgun and meth charges are Level 5 felonies with up to 6 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine and the visiting a common nuisance charge is a Level 6 felony punishable by up to 2.5 years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

Bowen was arrested after Madison Police responded to a report of a battery with a deadly weapon at the Madison Walmart, 567 Ivy Tech Drive, at 11:21 a.m. Nov. 5.

Patrolman Chad Wehner was called to Walmart and interviewed 19-year-old Trevor Gage Robinson, who said he had been kidnapped at nearby Presidential Estates, held at gunpoint by Bowen and driven to Walmart by Bowen with a woman named Alesia Thompson also in the car. During the encounter, Robinson said that Bowen had given him a blue index card with a list of items to steal from Walmart and had struck him in the face and head with a handgun, causing lacerations. He also said

Teachers make voices heard

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

In the sea of red shirts that flooded the Statehouse complex Tuesday morning were Madison and Southwestern teachers petitioning for state support.

Over 15,000 educators from around the state and more than 75 teachers in Jefferson County signed up for Red for Ed Action Day, which had teachers rallying in Indianapolis for higher public school funding, a revaluation of state testing and higher consideration of teachers' status as professionals.

The rally was organized by the Indiana State Teacher's Association (ISTA) and a few other teacher unions. The rally resulted in Southwestern using a school snow day because it does not have e-learning days and Madison scheduling an e-learning day because they were not enough substitute teachers available to have a regular school day. More than 145 other districts across the state also cancelled school.

"I kind of felt a sense of relief to be with that many people that see this as an issue, and to have everybody calmly voicing their concerns about this issue and how many things are being affected by a lack of funding in public education," said Shelly Murphy Smith, a kindergarten teacher at Lydia Middleton Elementary. Smith has taught in the school corporation since 1998 and often pulls all-nighters, works away from her classroom on weekends and holidays and spends her own money on classroom projects like many other teachers do, she said. It's getting harder for some educators to do so, she said.

"I think there's that misconception that teachers don't do all these things and they do, and they spend their own money, and it's because we love it, and we do love what we do or we wouldn't do it," Smith said.

Smith and her colleagues left for Indianapolis about 6 a.m., she said . After they arrived and registered near 8 a.m., they joined a crowd of thousands singing songs, holding signs, chanting "Red for Ed" and hearing speeches from ISTA President Keith Gambill and National Education Association Vice President Becky Pringle on the Statehouse lawn.

"Attracting and retaining teachers is an issue that must be addressed," Gambill said to teachers on the Statehouse steps. "Legislators have led us to this crisis. Fifty-first in the country for salary growth. Lowest pay in the region. Historic levels of emergency permits and positions unfilled. This system is unsustainable and is hurting our children. We can no longer continue down this path. To the legislators in the Statehouse today, we say 'pencils down, your time is up.'"

For the better part of the morning, Smith and her colleagues stood shoulder-to-shoulder in the cold, talking with other teachers about the shrinking morale, employment and funding in their schools. A lot of students and children of teachers were also there, Smith said, and people driving past the Statehouse complex yelled in support. Superintendent Jeff Studebaker and Board of Trustees member Larry Henry were there to join Madison teachers in protest.

Although crowded and cramped, the vibe was peaceful and calm, Smith said.

"We were told we might be facing some people who wouldn't be so supportive, but we didn't run into anyone like that," she said.

Then around 11 a.m., the teachers began a march around the Indiana Government Center campus. Teachers formed long lines

Indiana House Speaker Bosma to retire after 2020 session

By TOM DAVIES
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The longest-serving leader of the Indiana House announced Tuesday that he will retire after the 2020 legislative session.

Republican Speaker Brian Bosma told lawmakers that he would continue in the powerful position that largely controls which proposals are considered until the upcoming session ends in March. Bosma, 62, said he wouldn't seek re-election in 2020 after 34 years in the House.

Bosma presided over the House as Republicans took major steps such as creating the state's private school voucher program, approving the contentious state religious objections law, leasing the Indiana Toll Road to a private operator and adopting statewide daylight saving time. He maneuvered last spring's passage of a state hate-crimes law that critics fault for not having language that explicitly covers age, sex or gender identity.

He also spearheaded the GOP push to make Indiana the first Midwestern state with a "right to work" law barring companies and unions from signing contracts that require employees to pay union fees. That bill prompted lengthy boycotts by Democratic lawmakers in 2011 and 2012 that ultimately failed as Bosma ordered $1,000-a-day fines against them. Bosma on Tuesday touted the growth of Indiana's $2 billion in cash reserves, the state's top credit rating, and cuts in state corporate and income taxes during his time leading the House.

"While we're not perfect, Indiana is really the envy of the nation on the fiscal and business front," he said.

Bosma has been the top House Republican as either speaker or minority leader since 2001. He was first speaker in 2005-2006 as Mitch Daniels' election as governor helped Republicans regain a House majority after six years.

Democrats took control again for four years, but Bosma has been speaker since 2011. And GOP control of redistricting that year helped propel them to supermajorities topping two-thirds of the House since 2013 that enable Republicans to take action even with no Democrats present.

House Democratic leader Phil GiaQuinta of Fort Wayne said he had many policy disagreements with Bosma but called him a good friend and worthy adversary.

"The speaker has probably grown in the way he's done his job over the last couple of sessions, trying to include more Democrats in decision-making versus when he first started," GiaQuinta said.

Bosma pushed a proposed state constitution amendment banning gay marriage for several years until it stalled in 2014, a year before the U.S. Supreme Court legalized such marriages nationwide.

That fight was followed in 2015 by the battle over a religious objections law, which Bosma supported until it faced a national uproar over whether it could be used to sanction discrimination against gays and lesbians. Bosma was then among GOP legislative leaders who within days negotiated revisions blocking its use as a legal defense for refusing to provide services that then-Gov. Mike Pence reluctantly signed.

Bosma said he'll become chairman of the Washington-based Republican Legislative Campaign Committee and continue working at an Indianapolis law firm.

Republican House members will select Bosma's successor in the coming weeks. Bosma said the successor will work with him during the 2020 session and take over GOP caucus leadership heading into the November 2020 election when all 100 House seats will be on the ballot.

Fort Wayne man gets suspended sentence for molesting 2 teens

Indiana

FORT WAYNE — A man who once faced 13 charges related to child molesting has avoided time in prison after pleading guilty to two counts of sexual misconduct with a minor. Allen Superior Court Judge Fran Gull sentenced 49-year-old Steven Wells to a three-year suspended prison sentence and ordered him to spend four years on probation, as called for in a plea agreement he reached with prosecutors. Wells also was ordered not to contact the girls. The 11 other charges were dismissed. Court records state Wells admitted to having sex with a 14-year-old girl and abusing a 13-year-old girl who has the mental capacity of a 7-year-old. The abuse happened between 2012 and 2016. Wells signed court documents and then was released on his own recognizance following the Friday hearing.

Councilman pleads not guilty in kidnapping

CROWN POINT — A councilman has pleaded innocent to charges he kidnapped, confined and intimidated a teenager he believed was involved in the theft of his automobile. Common Council President Ronald Brewer entered the plea Monday in Lake County Superior Court. Defense attorney Scott King told Magistrate Kathleen Sullivan there is no basis for the most serious charges against the 44-year-old Brewer because of a citizen's arrest law. King also said he doesn't think the intimidation count Brewer is facing is supported by the facts of the case. Police have said Brewer tracked down his stolen vehicle in East Chicago, Indiana on Sept. 22. After firing a gun at the teens inside it, he took the 14-year-old boy against his will into Gary. During a 911 call, the teen can be heard telling Brewer he didn't know the auto was stolen.

Park honoring slain teens gets donated light poles

DELPHI — A planned park honoring two teenage girls who were slain in 2017 is getting donated light poles to illuminate its softball fields and playgrounds. The Purdue Research Foundation donated 10 outdoor light poles and lighting fixtures for the Abby and Libby Memorial Park. That park near Delphi is named for 14-year-old Liberty German and 13-year-old Abigail Williams, whose February 2017 deaths remain unsolved. A Duke Energy crew removed the 65-foot-tall poles Monday from their concrete bases at Purdue University's former Intermural Black Fields and put them on a trailer for delivery at the park, about 60 miles northwest of Indianapolis. Mike Patty is Liberty German's grandfather. He says the poles will go on pallets so they can be painted before they're installed at the park.

Tractor-trailer strikes, kills 2 children on farm

NAPPANEE — Police say two young children were killed when they were run over by a tractor-trailer hauling corn on a farm. The Kosciusko County Sheriff's Office says the children, ages 3 and 5, died Tuesday afternoon on a farm near Nappanee. Both were pronounced dead at the scene. Police say a preliminary investigation indicates a 26-year-old Nappanee man who was driving the tractor-trailer began pulling it forward, unaware that the children were beneath the trailer. Both suffered fatal injuries. Authorities haven't released the youngsters' names. WSBT-TV reports that relatives say the children lived at a home on the farm property, but no one noticed they had left that home's fenced-in yard and were near the truck.

AG-elect Cameron says Dunn to serve as deputy FRANKFORT — Attorney General-elect Daniel Cameron says he will appoint Barry Dunn as his deputy attorney general when he takes office as the state's top prosecutor. Cameron says Dunn's deep knowledge of state government and his private-sector experience will serve the state well. In 2015, Dunn was appointed as general counsel of the Kentucky Public Protection Cabinet. In that job, he served as the state's chief lawyer on regulation of financial institutions, insurance, horse racing, alcoholic beverages, professional licensing and charitable gaming. Most recently, Dunn formed a law firm focused in part on government regulatory issues and small businesses. Dunn grew up in Adair County in south-central Kentucky, where he served as a firefighter while attending college. He attended law school at the University of Louisville.

Regional offices to issue Real ID licenses

FRANKFORT — A transportation official says the state plans to set up 12 regional offices to issue special driver's licenses that will be needed in less than a year to board domestic airline flights. Media outlets report that the transportation official, Matt Henderson, told state lawmakers on Monday that the state eventually would like to have 28 to 30 regional offices. Henderson is vehicle regulation commissioner in the state Transportation Cabinet. The state faces an Oct. 1, 2020, federal deadline to start issuing Real ID driver's licenses. Henderson says the cost to operate and staff 28 regional offices would be about $16 million a year, but the sale of the special licenses would help defray the expenses. The licenses will cost $24 for four years and $48 for eight years.

Beshears invite children to poster contest

FRANKFORT — Gov.-elect Andy Beshear and his wife are welcoming children to participate in a poster contest celebrating the gubernatorial inauguration theme — Team Kentucky. The Beshears say children ages 6-17 are asked to imagine Kentuckians working together to accomplish common goals. They're asking youngsters to draw a picture of the goal they want accomplished. Future first lady Britainy Beshear is urging children to think about goals that could help their school, community or state. A panel that includes Britainy Beshear will judge entries and select one winner from three categories — ages 6-9, 10-13 and 14-17. Two additional overall winners will be selected for having the most colorful and most creative poster. The winners and their families will be invited to the Capitol for the inaugural celebration on Dec. 10.

Teen suspects should be 'passed around' jail

LOUISVILLE — A school security officer is in trouble over a Facebook comment he made about the beating of an autistic student in a high school bathroom. The Courier Journal reports that Tony Howell was commenting on an article about an assault at Iroquois High. Surveillance video showed four teens following the victim into a school bathroom, where he was found lying in a pool of blood. Howell wrote that the arrested teens should be "passed around" in prison. His comment is under review by Jefferson County Public Schools. Howell said "the real problem and story is still the bad kids and Iroquois."

Sports betting takes off

Indiana truck driver puts down legal wager on 1st day

By DARRELL SMITH
Connersville News-Examiner

On Sept. 9, Belterra Casino Resort cut the ribbons for a new addition to the casino, a full section sports betting platform, with the help of former Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson (left). (Photo by WKMNews.com)

Betting on sporting events has been going on maybe since the beginning of sports but it became legal in Indiana Sept. 1.

Mobile sports betting did not come online until Oct. 3.

In the first month, locations licensed to accept sports bets took in $35.2 million, according to the Indiana Gaming Commission.

Only two people who had placed sports bets responded to an inquiry about their experiences on the Connersville News-Examiner Facebook page.

Jeff Logan is a truck driver who has bet on sports long before the practice became legal. He began putting down wagers at Indiana Grand in Shelbyville when it became legal.

Shelbyville opened the first day to accept sports book.

"I was there (Shelbyville) day one," he said. "I bet on the Colts to win the Super Bowl at 10-1 and took the Indiana Hoosiers to win in basketball (NCAA) at 50-1. I did a couple baseball bets since it was going on at that time. I still have a winning ticket I need to take back because I haven't been there since."

He attended the ribbon cutting at Shelbyville and when the windows opened, probably 50 people stood in line ahead of him and nearly that many behind him, he said.

Harrah's Hoosier Park in Anderson opened about three weeks later, he said. Hollywood Casino in Lawrenceburg has opened for sportsbook and he also visited there recently.

Logan has also visited the Anderson location because he has friends who go to that track. Now that mobile betting is legal, that is where he places most bets.

"Believe it or not, I put $50 in my online account through DraftKings and as of this morning (Monday), I have $176 in there," Logan said. "I'm not a big player by any means. I do it for pure fun."

On an online parlay bet, betting two or more teams to win, bets can be as low as 10 cents, he said. At the casinos, it is a $5 minimum.

The casino or online service will win in the long haul; they will never lose, he said. While he may win a little, others lose.

As a truck driver, there are time he drives to Kentucky and Ohio. He explained if he is physically in those states, his cellphone will recognize that and he cannot place bets until back in Indiana. Those states have not set up sports betting yet and he has not visited another state with legal online sports betting to try betting there.

His son lives in Missouri and cannot place online bets on Indiana sites but when he returns to the state, Logan said.

In September, the Gaming Commission reported receiving $813,103 in sports waging taxes. The October report showed the tax increasing to $1,096,160 from the casinos and online betting.

Betters placed a total of $91.7 million in sports bets with $48 million of that in online bets for the month. Football sports betting leads the way with $63.6 million in wagers for both months

Bowen threatened to kill him if he did not steal the items on the list.

Robinson said Bowen was in a white Ford car. Wehner checked with central dispatch and was advised that Bowen has a 2002 white Ford Escort registered in his name. MPD Sgt. William Watterson and Capt. Dan Stephan, who also were at the scene, told Wehner they had located that vehicle in the parking lot of the store and it was occupied by a male and a female.

Wehner went to the parking lot where Bowen, who was known to Wehner, and a female who had told police her name was Tiffany Bennett were in the car. Although Bowen had earlier told Watterson and Stephen that he was unarmed, he confirmed to Wehner that he had a gun in the front right pocket of his coat. A .25-caliber Raven Auto pistol, chambered with four bullets, was recovered. Bowen told Wehner he had not indicated possession of the gun earlier because he was "scared."

Wehner's report said he detected the odor of burnt marijuana in the car and a search found a syringe, a zippered pouch that contained a clear plastic baggie, a pen, pink index cards and another pouch with a white powdery substance and a blue straw that tested positive for methamphetamine — all on the front passenger floorboard — as well as a black book bag elsewhere in the car, which contained two scales in which one had a powdery residue that also tested positive for methamphetamine.

Police soon determined the female in the car was actually Alesia Dawn Thompson as Robinson had indicated earlier and not Tiffany Bennett. The probable cause affidavit said Thompson was "dancing around the parking lot" and "made the statement that she was high."

A check with central dispatch found seven active warrants for Thompson out of Jefferson County so she was taken into custody. Thompson told police the drugs found in the car were hers and that she and Bowen had just picked up Robinson, who she identified as her brother, at Presidential Estates and came to Walmart. She confirmed that Robinson was sent into the store with a list of items to steal and said that Robinson had been stealing from her and other residents of Presidential Estates.

Bowen was placed under arrest for being in possession of the handgun without a license and for possession of a handgun as a convicted felon. Wehner told Bowen at the time of the arrest he could face additional charges for battery.

Thompson also was arrested and charged with possession of methamphetamine less than 5 grams, possession of a syringe and identity deception, all Level 6 felonies punishable by up to 2.5 years prison and up to a $10,000 fine. She was also charged with misdemeanor possession of paraphernalia.

Bowen, was at the time of the arrest on parole after pleading guilty to trafficking in methamphetamine, a Class B felony in 2013. He also has two other felony convictions in the last 15 years.

Wehner said he conducted a follow-up interview with Robinson while he was being treated for injuries at King's Daughters' Hospital and Robinson said there was actually another male with them for part of the ordeal that started in the early morning hours of Nov. 5. He said they at one point drove him to the former Jefferson Proving Grounds where Bowen beat him and then burned his clothes because the garments were covered in blood.

Wehner noted in his affidavit that he has dealt with Robinson previously and he has reported similar situations to police in the past but that on Nov. 5 Robinson said "I am not lying this time."

Robinson, whose address is listed as Dupont, Indiana, had pleaded guilty in October to a misdemeanor charge of unlawful entry into a motor vehicle in the 1100 block of East Street in Madison, with a 34-day jail sentence suspended except for four days plus court costs.

Bowen was put in the Jefferson County Jail on a parole hold. A not-guilty plea was entered on Bowen's behalf at a court appearance last week. His bond for the Nov. 5 incident has been set at $50,000 full cash.

Thompson was in the Jefferson County Jail on both the new charges and the active warrants. Her bond was set at $10,000 cash.

A pre-trial conference has been scheduled for both Bowen and Thompson at 1 p.m. Jan. 8, 2020 with their jury trials scheduled for 9 a.m. Feb. 4, 2020.

A nurse explains why the flu shot cannot give you the flu

By LIBBY RICHARDS

Flu vaccination prevents millions of flu-related illnesses and deaths annually, but vaccination rates are low for many reasons.

During the 2018-2019 flu season, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported about 45% of U.S. adults received the flu vaccine. While this is an increase of 8% from 2017-2018, it falls way below the national goal of 70% of American adults receiving a flu shot.

One of the common myths that leads people to avoid the flu shot is that they think the shot will give them the flu. But that is simply not true. The virus in the vaccine is not active, and an inactive virus cannot transmit disease. What is true is that you may feel the effects of your body mounting an immune response, but that does not mean you have the flu.

I am a nursing professor with experience in public health promotion, and I hear this and other myths often. Here are the facts and the explanations behind them.

INACTIVE VIRUS

Influenza, or the flu, is a common but serious infectious respiratory disease that can result in hospitalization or even death. The CDC estimates that during a "good" flu season, approximately 8% of the U.S. population could get the flu. That is roughly 26 million people.

Each year the flu season is different, and the flu virus also affects people differently. One dangerous complication of the flu is pneumonia, which can result when your body is working hard to fight the flu. This is particularly dangerous in older adults, young children, and those whose immune systems aren't working well, such as those receiving chemotherapy or transplant recipients.

Historically millions of Americans get the flu each year, hundreds of thousands are hospitalized and tens of thousands of people die from flu-related complications. During the 1918 flu pandemic, one-third of the world's population, or about 500 million people, were infected with the flu. Since that time, vaccine science has dramatically changed the impact of infectious diseases.

> "The virus in the vaccine is not active, and an inactive virus cannot transmit disease." — Libby Richards, an associate professor of nursing at Purdue University

The cornerstone of flu prevention is vaccination. The CDC recommends that everyone 6 months of age and older who does not have contraindications to the vaccine, receive the flu shot.

And just as the polio vaccine won't give a child polio, the flu vaccine will not cause the flu. That's because the flu vaccine is made with inactive strains of the flu virus, which are not capable of causing the flu.

That said, some people may feel sick after they receive the flu shot which can lead to thinking they got sick from the shot.

However, feeling under the weather after a flu shot is actually a positive. It can be a sign that your body's immune response is working. What happens is this: When you receive the flu shot, your body recognizes the inactive flu virus as a foreign invader. This is not dangerous; it causes your immune system to develop antibodies to attack the flu virus when exposed in the future. This natural immune response may cause some people to develop a low-grade fever, headache or overall muscle aches. These side effects can be mistaken for the flu but in reality are likely the body's normal response to vaccination.

And the good news is these natural symptoms are short-term side effects compared to the flu, which can last much longer and is more severe. It is estimated that less than 2% of people who get a flu shot will develop a fever.

Also, people often confuse being sick with a bad cold or stomach flu with having influenza. Influenza symptoms can include a fever, chills, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, body aches, fatigue and headaches. Cold symptoms can be similar to the flu but are typically milder. The stomach flu, or gastroenteritis, can be caused by several different bacteria or viruses. Symptoms of gastroenteritis involve nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

PRE-SHOT EXPOSURES AND MISMATCHES

Some people do get the flu after they have received a flu shot, but that is not from the shot. It can happen for a couple of reasons.

First, they could have been exposed to the flu before they had the shot. It can take up to two weeks after receiving the flu shot to develop full immunity. Therefore, if you do get the flu within this period, it is likely that you were exposed to the flu either prior to being vaccinated or before your full immunity developed.

Second, depending on the strain of the flu virus that you are exposed to, you could still get the flu even if you received the vaccine. Every year, the flu vaccine is created to best match the strain of the flu virus circulating. Therefore, the effectiveness of the flu vaccine depends on the similarity between the virus circulating in the community and the killed viruses used to make the vaccine.

If there is a close match between the two, then the effectiveness of the flu vaccine will be high. However, if there is not a close match, vaccine effectiveness could be reduced. Still, it is imperative to note that even when there is not a close match between the circulating virus and the virus used to make the vaccine, the vaccine will still lessen the severity of flu symptoms and also help prevent flu-related complications.

Bottom line: You cannot get influenza from getting the flu vaccine. As someone who has treated many people who do get the flu, I strongly urge you to get the shot.

St. Cecilia Feast Day this Friday at Christ Episcopal Church

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

This Friday is the sixth annual St. Cecilia Arts Festival at 7:30 p.m. Christ Episcopal Church in Madison. St. Cecilia is the patron saint of musicians, and festival organizer Tabitha Tolbert has a whole smorgasbord of artful offerings cooked up in her honor.

"The event is scheduled to be just 70 minutes in length," Tabitha said, "but it's jam-packed with a variety of interesting styles and compositions. We feature mostly local artists, composers and musicians. Our theme this year is 'joy.'

"Ann Farnsley from Vevay is the featured visual artist. We also have a poet reading, 'Songs of Joy,' by Walt Whitman. And to kick off the music we have Isaac 'Spike' Boone performing a Chopin piece on our fully restored 1868 Sebastien Erard grand piano. Spike is an exceptional young pianist, and I'm very excited to for people to see him play.

"Spike will be followed by local composer Steve Boone premiering his new piece entitled 'The Haze of Your Persuasion.' Steve will be on vocals and keyboards, plus Steve Pullias on bass, Rick Bennett on sax, Brook Reindollar on trumpet and Tim Beitzel on drums.

"Next up is two choral pieces by the Christ Church choir, with guests from the community. Then we have a piece with Camille Fife singing alto, Dan Dattilo singing tenor, Meg Bramer on cello and Starla Raley on piano. Yvonne Davis will also be bringing her Jazz for Jesus quartet to the event.

"Finally, we have a folk group composed of members of the Fly Over Country Moose Club Band, including Connie Welch, John Branigan, John Collins, Leon Michl, Kathleen Rubio, and me on mandolin!"

Tabitha moved to Madison about 20 years ago by way of California. She picked up the mandolin relatively recently and takes lessons from Rob Houze at Crawdaddy Music. "I have a 1918 Gibson mandolin, and it sounds great. I like to play Celtic and American folk music, but I also like to cover rock songs, like the White Stripes.

"Lately I've been trying to learn jazz. I'm trying to break the wall of improvisation, take my playing to the level where I can just play and express the music without all the structure.

"I find playing and practicing music to be very cathartic and meditative. It's part of my wellness checklist! Also, I try to take in as much of the local live music scene as I can. We're very fortunate here to have so many venues and choices. The hardest thing on a Friday or Saturday night is choosing from three or four great options.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK:

The hottest ticket in town this weekend is the Ward Davis shows at Red Bicycle Hall. Davis is a Nashville songwriter with his songs recorded by the likes of Trace Adkins, Willie Nelson, Merle Haggard and many more. The Friday show has been sold out for weeks, but there are still some tickets available for the Thursday show. Also at Red Bike Hall on Saturday is the very popular Santana tribute show, led by guitar virtuoso Bill Lancton. If you like Santana, it's an immersive and unforgettable experience. The band at the Taproom Saturday night is also going to be special.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

on return, as the rally moved inside the Statehouse around noon. About 5,000 were inside, according to the Indiana State Police.

Smith and her fellow educators couldn't beat the lines to make it inside, but a group of Southwestern teachers did.

Brandon Frye, a business teacher at Southwestern High School and the district's ISTA representative, said he and other educators, among them Dan Dattilo, Lori Slygh, Jenifer Cornelius, Edna Curl and Kim Tingle, got to talk with Jim Lucas, state representative for District 69 about pay raises and funding, charter schools and state testing.

But Frye didn't exactly get the answer he was hoping for. The congressman told them, Frye said, that the money is often there to support teachers, but administrative costs at the local level can result in money not being used properly.

The group also met with Indiana Education Supt. Jennifer McCormick earlier that morning, who, Frye said, made an effort to greet and thank educators for being there. He and his group stayed until about 1 p.m. and also saw the American Federation of Teachers news conference in the South Atrium of the Statehouse earlier that morning, he said.

"It was amazing," Frye said of the experience. "Just to see all the people doing our duty in solidarity to come together with like-minded people who are out there for public education — it was just very moving to see all that, to listen to the speakers and get that perspective, it was amazing. ...We still have work to do. This wasn't the end...you'll still see the Red for Ed shirts that we'll continue to wear, and still be contacting legislators and staying on them. This isn't a one-day thing, it will be a continued movement as we move into the legislative session."

24 years a teacher, she shares feelings

Editor's note: Jodi Lea Pflaumer, who has been a third-grade teacher at Southwestern Elementary for 24 years, didn't make it to the rally. But, she had some thoughts she shared on Facebook. She gave the Courier permission to reprint her post.

Greetings Sir,

I am writing from room 302 at Southwestern Elementary while the #RedforEd Action Day is commencing in Indianapolis. Due to allergy issues and a sentimental heart, I chose not to physically attend today's rally, but my heart and thoughts are with it each step of the way. I pray wholeheartedly that my colleagues across Indiana are able to voice our concerns and frustrations in a positive manner without conflict. I'm not a fan of conflict. I believe in respect, communication and collaboration. Sadly, it feels like, as a public schoolteacher, I've not received that from the government with which I stand in allegiance.

Since I'm not there physically, I wanted to make sure my voice was heard. In a sea of thousands, it most likely wouldn't have been. Here, in a message to you, I can share my heart for education.

First, I hear frequently, "You knew what you were getting into when you chose to become a teacher." However, that is untrue. When I started my career, teachers were respected. Public schools were supported. Our students were students and not put in a box as a test score.

I have received annual appreciation messages from you. At first, my thought was, "It's simply a form letter he copied and sent to all educators." Then, I realized you were the only government official to do so. As I sat here wondering who would actually read my words and hear my heart, you were the only person I felt I could contact.

I am greatly saddened by the number of educators who have left our corporation to go to neighboring systems or other fields because they need a higher income. I am fortunate to be at the top of our scale, yet I still rely on selling my books. We joke that I'm a "book pusher." In actuality, each book earns me a few dollars...and sadly....a few dollars add up. I know many educators who hold "second jobs" to help support their families. Yet, we still spend a portion of our own paychecks to fund our own classroom. I buy earbuds for their devices when theirs break. I buy supplies for science inquiries as well as craft projects. There is no "account" where I can ask the school to pay for these things. Funding increase will help us not only draw new teachers but sustain them at our corporation.

Testing? Yes, schools need to be held accountable. Student achievement must be monitored. Expectations need to be high. Yet, the expensive high-stakes testing seems like, honestly, a waste of time and money. When I learned how many millions of dollars were spent on financing the test. I was saddened. Surely, there is a better way that won't consume so much funding which could actually impact improvements in public schools.

Then, there's the new addition to teacher accreditation with the externship. I somewhat understand the thought behind it, yet I think it's just another arrow of judgment aimed at educators. Wouldn't it make more sense to require elementary schools to plan a "Career Day" or a "Career Week" where local career people (both those requiring college and those that don't) come in to introduce the variety of options for life after graduation. Wouldn't it be more beneficial for middle schools and high schools to implement a Career Fair where students could actually talk to those career holders and ask questions to see the wide spectrum of post-graduation options.

Honestly, it seems that I am rambling. As a self-published author and a blogger, this frustrates me. I believe the rambling is because my heart is so overwhelmingly heavy with the current situation of Indiana public schools. Please, be my voice. Stand up for the education system that educated me and molded me into the public educator that I have become. Please....show my third graders that they matter to you, Governor Holcomb, and the rest of the Indiana legislature. I voted for you. I voted for him. Yet, I've yet to see my government vote for me and my students in their decisions.

Time to wipe the tears, literally, and close my heartfelt plea for change in laws and improvements in funding for public schools.

Sincerely,
Jodi Lea Pflaumer

'It's about our children,' says MCS superintendent

Editor's note: Jeff Studebaker, the superintendent of Madison Consolidated Schools, offered these thoughts Wednesday morning. Studebaker attended Tuesday's rally at the Capitol.

It's not just about teacher pay. It's about a return to common sense and fiscal responsibility. It's about our children.

The amount of money Indiana spends on testing, the amount of time wasted in a school year on those tests,and the indefensible application of the testing results is obscene. Our children deserve better...so do we the taxpayers.

There are those out there that will say, the Governor even, that we are spending a lot of money on education as a state. There is no argument there. The question is how the money is being spent. Why is there so much money spent on testing? Why the multiple layers of it when literally, one test could do the job better...a test most schools are already using? We are all smarter than that. At least Indiana's testing scheme can show that.

Those were the messages given and received at the Red for Ed Rally. Approximately 20,000 people demonstrated in Indianapolis...stood and marched. A few of the teachers were able to get into the Statehouse to speak with some legislators. The lines to get inside were long and not moving...but many got through and were heard.

I've had the opportunity to serve as an educator for many years and in different places around the state. I was in the line at my polling place the year the state pulled together to vote out one of the architects of our current mess. The teachers and the parents are at least as angry and active now as they were then... and in many instances it's clear...they're much more motivated to make change.

I've never participated in a protest before and I am convinced that the issues are not Conservative vs Liberal or Democrat vs Republican issues. They are real and daily problems impacting the students in Indiana. If there isn't a course correction made immediately there will be years of aftermath issues to resolve.

HomeStreet, Miss Madison renew sponsorship deal

Team will also run two boats in 2020

The successful relationship between sponsor HomeStreet Bank and Miss Madison Racing will continue for the foreseeable future, Miss Madison President Charlie Grooms confirmed this week.

In addition, the team plans on running its second boat for the full season with Seattle-area real estate mogul John Goodman serving as sponsor. Grooms said that details about that deal were still being negotiated.

Rumors have swirled online since the end of the season about HomeStreet's status within the sport with many declaring definitively that the company was pulling out. However news broke at the H1 Banquet in Washington on Saturday that the sponsor was staying and Grooms confirmed the news.

"They were never really officially gone. They had expressed numerous, let's call it corrective action, issues that needed to be addressed," Grooms said. "There are challenges in all motorsports and our sport is not immune to the challenges. I think it was a really good time for HomeStreet to have that 'let's re-evaluate here and take a good look' talk and make sure that we're all on the same page and that we're trying to accomplish the same things."

Grooms did not get into specifics about what HomeStreet was seeking but he did say that the company is all-in for 2020. In addition to it's long-term deal with Miss Madison Racing, HomeStreet Bank also has multi-year sponsorship deals with the races in both Seattle and San Diego and has a large sponsorship deal with the Tri-Cities. The deal in Seattle even goes beyond the race with the bank sponsoring the Torchlight Parade and the fireworks as well.

The deal with HomeStreet does not include the boat shop that the team is renting in Tukwila, Washington. Grooms said that deal is with the Miss Madison Team itself and due to commitments with the sponsor, the team plans on keeping the shop.

"The fact is, the Miss Madison team is committed to our sponsor with all of things that we do from displays to meetings to guided tours. It's impossible to do those things from 2,500 miles away in Madison," Grooms said. "Our board of directors is committed to Madison and we are committed to the community and being based out of Madison, but there are just certain limitations that we have being so far away. I know it tends to rub some people the wrong way, but that's just the way it is."

Grooms also mentioned that Mike

Madison beats Southwestern to retain Paddles

The scoreboard showed a lopsided win for Madison but in reality, nearly every bout was down to the wire in the high school wrestling lid-lifter at Southwestern on Monday.

The Cubs won the annual Battle of the Paddle event for the 10th-straight year by a 63-16 score, claiming 11 of the 14 matches on the night. Seven of the wins came by pin, but only one of those were in the first period and in a change from recent years, only three wins were by forfeit.

Madison coach Tyson Skinner noted the increased numbers on both sides and was more than happy to come away with the win in the season-opener.

"Southwestern has a lot of strong individuals and they've got a lot of young and up and coming kids," Skinner said. "I think this is one of the more competitive matches we have had in a while. They've almost got a full team and we've got a full team and that's a good thing to see in the area. I love to see wrestling growing."

There were only a handful of matches on the day that weren't competitive as both teams battled in nearly every bout.

Madison's most impressive victory on the night came at 106 pounds when freshman Bryce Turner pinned freshman Elijah Weatherbee in 46 seconds. But even in that bout, the match was competitive as Weatherbee held his own before the talented Turner took control.

"I've been around Bryce Turner quite a bit with the wrestling clubs and he's a seasoned wrestler, even though he's a freshman," Southwestern coach Scott Gross said. "He's been around the block and Elijah actually had him on his back at one point. Just inexperience and he'll get it."

Six other Madison wins came by pin/fall: Noah Burkhardt over Joseph Goins in 4:00 at 120 pounds; Mason Long in 3:10 over Skyler Hall at 152; Van Skinner in 2:29 over Mitchell Adcock at 170; Dalton Berry in 2:57 over Kyler Brooks at 182; Tucker Adams in 1:41 over Matthew Douglas at 220; and Dylan Fulton in 1:39 over Logan Birchfield at 285.

Madison's Jacob McRoberts defeated Cameron Canada 10-7 at 126, while Kelsey Bilz (113), Emmett Willhite (138) and Trenton Stockdale (160) each won by forfeit.

"Our senior leadership really impressed me," Tyson Skinner said. "Dalton had a really strong match, Jacob had a good match, Tucker had a good match and our freshmen stepped up. Van pulled off a pretty good win over Adcock, who is a really good wrestler. Everybody really pulled stuff out. I know that Noah wasn't up to par; he was dead tired but was able to pull that one out. I think from bottom to top, even the guys that lost, did well."

Two of Southwestern's three wins came via pin/fall with Clifton Hendrickson pinning Braydon Richards in 2:37 at 132 pounds and Brady McLain pinning Eli Stewart in 43 seconds

Hanover ready to face with mighty Mt. Union

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Coming off of a second-straight Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference championship and back-to-back Victory Bell wins over rival Franklin to end the regular season, Hanover football again finds itself preparing for the first round of the NCAA Division III National Playoffs.

But while this Panther roster has postseason experience, this Saturday's daunting first round challenge at Mount Union (Ohio), ranked No. 1 or No. 2 in the two D-III polls, will be uncharted territory for Hanover. The Purple Raiders, who have 16 national titles and have appeared in 16 of the last 17 national championship games, have dominated the Division III ranks and have staked claim as one of the elite football programs in college.

"To be the best you gotta beat the best," Hanover head coach Matt Theobald said on Monday. "We've talked about this as a team and about setting a standard Monday through Friday to get ready for a game like this on Saturday. Mount Union has some really talented guys and there's a reason why they are ranked at the top. Anything is possible as long as we believe."

Hanover's 2019 success piggybacks off of the team's 2018 NCAA playoff appearance, the first since 2003, that saw the Panthers fall 52-0 at No. 9 North Central (Ill.) in the first round. But with the majority of the roster returning and healthy a year later, Hanover has done nothing but build momentum all season long en route

Hanover whips Boyce, 115-53

sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover hit 15 3-pointers and shot a sizzling 56 percent from the floor to blow away Boyce 115-53 in the men's basketball home opener on Tuesday.

The Panthers had six different players score in double figures in the rout, led by Mark Albers who had 20 points on 7-of-12 shooting. Christian Stewart scored 14 points off the bench, Connor Washburn had 13, Carlos Garcia had 12 points and eight rebounds, Isaac Hibbard had 10 points and eight assists and Jack Wininger had 10 points.

Aaron Quinley scored 16 points and Kevin Kirby had 12 to lead Boyce.

Hanover (2-0) plays in the Webster Classic at Webster (Mo.) this weekend. The Panthers face Westminster Friday and host Webster Saturday.

CAM beats Hawks to remain unbeaten

Trent Haggard recorded a double-double of 13 points and 14 rebounds to lead Christian Academy to a 68-53 win over the Columbus Hawks at home on Tuesday to remain unbeaten on the season.

The Defenders started out the game red-hot, scoring 21 points in the first quarter to take a nine-point lead. But Columbus stayed close enough to make the game interesting with CAM extending its lead in every quarter.

Along with Haggard's big game, Clay Carter had 18 points and Luke Carter scored 17 for the Defenders. Jaxon Miller chipped in nine points.

Hayden Stamper hit six 3-pointers and scored 22 points while Caleb Dukes had 18 points to lead Columbus.

Now 4-0 on the season, CAM hosts the Southeast Panthers from Lawrenceburg on Friday.

Hoosiers hope to return to AP Top 25

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

The Indiana Hoosiers let one chance to beat a ranked team slip away last weekend.

They hope to take advantage of a second chance this weekend.

One week after ending their quarter-century AP Top 25 drought, the Hoosiers fell out of the rankings following a 34-27 loss at No. 9 Penn State. They know they could make a quick return by upsetting No. 12 Michigan on Saturday.

"You go and you play a team that's one of the top in the country one week and then you got to go back and do it again," coach Tom Allen said Monday during his weekly news conference. "That's part of being in this conference, being in this division, always playing these teams every year. I think that just gives us more to teach off of and get ourselves ready."

Certainly, the Hoosiers have learned plenty from going toe to toe with some of the nation's most prestigious programs over the years.

They've dealt with close calls, blowouts and sometimes agonizingly unforgiving schedules. Typically, they've struggled to pick up the breakthrough win that would impress regional and national college football fans.

Things have changed this season, though.

Two weeks ago, Allen got the first signature win in his three-year tenure — a 38-31 postseason-clinching victory at Nebraska. Indiana (7-3, 4-3 Big Ten) followed that with a 35-point blowout over Northwestern to clinch its first winning season in 12 years. One week later, the Hoosiers reappeared in the rankings.

Last weekend, on the road, Indiana held its own against the Nittany Lions despite being without injured starting quarterback Michael Penix Jr. or top receiver Whop Philyor, who left during the game after taking two helmet-to-helmet hits simultaneously. Penix won't play this week, and it's unclear whether Philyor will return.

"That's a process that we'll go through throughout the week," Allen said when asked about Philyor. "We'll do a great job of being very diligent with that, in his best interests."

Still, the odds this week don't look much more encouraging.

The surging Wolverines (8-2, 5-2, No. 15 CFP) have won 23 consecutive games in the series since Indiana last won in 1987. The Hoosiers have lost 16 straight against ranked foes and the initial betting line made Michigan an eight-point favorite.

But things haven't been nearly as lopsided lately. The Wolverines needed overtime to win their last two games in Bloomington and haven't won at Indiana by more than seven points since 2006.

Plus, the Hoosiers have plenty to prove.

to a 9-1 regular season record and unblemished 7-0 mark in HCAC play.

The Panthers finished seventh in the NCAA Division III North rankings and have received votes the last three weeks in the D3 Football and AFCA Coaches Top 25 polls. Riding a nine-game win streak after falling in the season opener to then-ranked Centre (Ky.), Hanover has put together a well-balanced attack on both sides of the ball.

The offense is averaging 40 points per game and is just shy of 475 yards a game — 261.7 passing yards per game and 209.3 rushing yards per game — while the defense has spent most of the season nationally ranked, allowing just 13.7 points per game and 286 yards per game. As the postseason gets underway though, the slate is clear and Hanover must prepare a flawless game plan in order to keep a historic season alive.

"We're ready for the playoffs," Theobald said. "We're excited to be playing another week but on Saturday it comes down to execution. As this fifth quarter of the season comes along every game is going to be hard. We're going to come out and do our best. If you've prepared Monday through Friday then Saturday takes care of itself. We have to be great at the fundamentals."

Mount Union (10-0) enters the playoffs ranked No. 1 in the AFCA Coaches Poll and No. 2 in the D3 Football Top 25. The Purple Raiders fell 24-16 to No. 1 Mary Hardin-Baylor (Texas) in the 2018 national championship game but with a veteran roster back, Mount is again a heavy favorite to win the NCAA crown after ending the regular season with another Ohio Athletic Conference title.

On paper, the numbers back up Mount's dominance and no opponent has finished a game within 23 points and only one team has managed to score 20 points or more on the defense. The Purple Raiders rank second in the nation on offense with 54.5 points per game on 556.9 total yards per game and rank third on defense, allowing just 196.8 total yards per game and only 7.5 points per game.

"This is a very impressive group," Theobald said of Mount Union. "They have a senior-laden group that has that playoff experience and experience playing in a national championship game. There are a lot of starters back It's going to be a challenge."

A pair of seniors lead an offense that averages over 300 yards through the air. Quarterback D'Angelo Fulford has only tossed one pick all year and has completed nearly 75 percent of his passes. Fulford is 139-of-191 passing for 2,247 yards while throwing 35 touchdowns in 10 starts. Of those 35, 21 have been brought down by wide receiver Justin Hill, who leads the country in touchdown catches. He also ranks third in the NCAA with 1,285 yards on 63 catches, averaging 20.4 yards per catch. Another senior wideout, Derrick Harvey Jr., has 547 receiving yards and nine scores.

Not to be outdone, the Purple Raiders also have a rushing attack that averages 237 yards per game. Running back Josh Petruccelli, a junior, has 1,192 yards on 171 carries with 15 touchdowns, while four other players have rushed for over 200 yards and five have scored touchdowns on the ground.

"Our goal is to make one more play than they do, just like we did against Franklin last Saturday," Theobald said. "We're going to have to tackle and we have to be ready for their schematics and have to get used to their speed. But that's why we prepare with games against teams like Centre and Adrian and Maryville in the non-conference, so that we can be prepared as possible for games like these."

Mount Union's defense has forced 22 turnovers on the year, including 13 interceptions. The Purple Raiders are allowing just 88.7 rushing yards per game and 108.1 passing yards per game, each of those ranking towards the top in the nation.

Senior linebacker Trey Williams leads the defense with 54 tackles and junior linebacker Mitch O'Hara has 42 tackles while the two have combined for three sacks and 15.5 tackles for a loss. Defensive backs Harry Bowker, Jesse Vail, Malik Britt and Nate Fisette have combined for nine interceptions with Bowker leading the team with three picks. As a whole, the defense has pitched three shutouts on the year and allowed less than 10 points in seven of the 10 regular season games.

"They've got size that we will need to adjust to in addition to their speed," Theobald noted. "We have to block, we have to pass and catch and we have to run. Our kicking game has to be there and obviously we have to protect the football. That's what a good football game comes down to. It's about surviving. Win and advance."

Mount Union and Hanover previously met in the national playoffs when the Panthers made their first appearance in the NCAA Division III postseason in 1995. The host Purple Raiders came out on top 52-18 in the first round. It is the only meeting between the two schools.

Saturday's first round game kicks off at noon from Mount Union Stadium and can be heard locally on 95.3 FM WIKI and 953wiki.com. The winner advances to next Saturday's second round and faces either No. 5 North Central (Ill.) or Wabash.

and Larry Hanson, the two long-time crew members and crew chiefs that are in charge of running the racing portion of the team, are based in Seattle and keeping a shop in that area just makes sense.

"We were fortunate that for 25 years, Mike and Larry lived in Madison and when Dan Hoover was the crew chief, he moved to Madison thanks to Bob Hughes and Clifty Engineering," Grooms said. "Mike has moved back to Seattle and frankly, we're still recovering from Dan's death in a lot of ways. This just makes sense."

The boat that HomeStreet Bank sponsors and which is driven by Jimmy Shane was the team's newest boat, which was built in 2018. The team's older boat, the 2007-vintage hull, ran at three races last year under the sponsorship of Oberto Quality Meats with Jeff Bernard driving.

At the H1 Banquet on Saturday, it was announced that Seattle-area real estate mogul John Goodman would sponsor the 2007 boat next season. Grooms confirmed Goodman's involvement but said that details were still being negotiated and an details would be released at a later date. Grooms did say that Goodman's plan is to use the sponsorship of the boat for philanthropic reasons, not to publicize his real estate business.

The Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison won the National High Points Championship a year ago, the team's ninth title in the past 11 years. The primary boat will run with the "U-1" designation next season. There is no word yet on what number the other boat will carry.

Miss Madison Racing, HomeStreet win awards

Miss Madison Racing was honored with four awards as was sponsor HomeStreet Bank during the annual H1 Unlimited Awards Banquet in Washington on Saturday.

Along with being awarded the Martini & Rossi National Championship Trophy, driver Jimmy Shane was awarded the Bill Muncey High Point Champion Driver Award and Mike Hanson was named the Crew Chief of the Year. Team President Charlie Grooms was given one of the two Chairman's Awards.

In addition, HomeStreet Bank was named the Sponsor of the Year.

Other award winners were: Lisa Courneya and Brian Montgomery, Chairman's Award; Guntersville Lake HydroFest, Race Site of the Year; Emily Raney, H1 Volunteer of the Year; H1 Live Stream Team, Outstanding Contribution; U-12 Graham Trucking, Crew of the Year; Rob Graham/U-12 and U-96, Owner of the Year; Bert Henderson and U-7 Spirit of Detroit, 3rd Place Driver and Team; and J. Michael Kelly and U-12 Graham Trucking, 2nd Place Driver and Team.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Rebels' D bails out offense in win over North Decatur

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

PICKPOCKET: Southwestern's Bella Marcum (above, in white) sprints away from North Decatur's Morgan Stanley (32) after pulling off a steal during Tuesday's game. The Rebels' Ellie Foley (right, 00) drives to the basket over the Chargers' Stanley and Sidney Parmer (54). Marcum had 12 points and 10 steals in the win. (Staff photos by David Campbell)

It's said that an ugly win is better than a pretty loss and no where was that more apparent than in Hanover on Tuesday.

Despite turning the ball over 20 times and shooting just 26% from the floor, Southwestern's girls basketball team pulled out a 33-32 win over visiting North Decatur for the Rebels' fourth-straight win.

Southwestern waited until the fourth quarter to play its best. After scoring just 14 points in the first three quarters and trailing by as much as 12, the Rebels caught fire over the final eight minutes, getting the winning basket by Ashton Goode on a layup with seven seconds to play.

"We've got to clean it up before the fourth quarter. We've had too many games where we've waited until we can't wait any longer to get going," Southwestern coach Devin Brierly said. "Once we figure that out, I think we'll be all right. An ugly win, but a win's a win and I think they're proud to be undefeated at home so far."

Neither team mounted much of an offense throughout the game. Southwestern held a 5-4 lead after the first quarter and North Decatur flipped the script in the second, taking an 11-9 lead into the break.

The Chargers (1-4) finally appeared to get their act together in the third, eventually taking a 23-11 lead late in the period on a Jenna Geis bucket with 2:48 left.

Southwestern slowly began to reel North Decatur back in, and it was the Rebels' aggressive man-to-man defense that did the damage.

Harassing the Chargers at every turn, Southwestern forced 34 turnovers in the game, 25 of which came via the steal. That defense finally began to manifest itself into points as the Rebels pulled to within 23-14 by the end of the third and began cutting into the lead into the fourth.

"Defense is definitely something that we pride ourselves on. I wasn't the least bit worried about our defense. It's been our strong point since the beginning of the year and anytime you can hold a team to 32 points, that's a great defensive outing," Brierly said. "Not being able to score tonight is the story. Our guards need to develop a mid-range game and hit shots when they're open. But they also need to take better care of the ball because we had a lot of turnovers, too."

An Ellie Foley layup with 2:39 to play pulled Southwestern to within 30-29 and, on the next possession, Bella Marcum picked off a North Decatur pass and took it all the way back to the basket to give the Rebels the lead at 31-30.

Southwestern held that advantage until the waning moments of the game when Olivia Bohman hit a shot with 18 seconds left to put the Chargers back on top. But the Rebels never hesitated and Goode sliced to the basket off a Marcum pass and laid the ball in with six seconds to go.

North Decatur was able to get a final shot off, but Brittney Kreiger's attempt was off the mark and Southwestern celebrated its win.

Southwestern finished the game shooting just 26% from the floor (13-for-50) but the Rebels were nearly 50% (9-of-19) in the second half. Southwestern also went just 6-of-12 at the free-throw line, but 5-of-9 in the fourth quarter.

Bella Marcum recorded a double-double of 12 points and 10 steals and added seven rebounds to lead Southwestern while Foley had nine points and nine steals and Goode scored eight points.

Sidney Parmer scored 14 points and had 15 rebounds to lead North Decatur, which shot 34 percent (15-for-44) for the game.

Southwestern takes its four-game win streak into winless South Dearborn on Saturday. The Rebels then host Madison in the annual Turkey Shootout on Wednesday.

Cubs roll over Dearborn

Madison dominated the first three quarters and rolled to a 57-33 win over South Dearborn in girls basketball Tuesday in Aurora.

The Lady Cubs led only 10-7 after the first quarter but outscored the Knights 38-12 over the next two to take a commanding 48-19 lead into the fourth quarter.

Jade Nutley recorded a double-double of 11 points and 11 rebounds to lead Madison while Paige Young had 12 points, six rebounds and five steals and Meghan Eades had 10 points.

Kyrstin Bond scored 24 points to lead South Dearborn.

Madison, now 3-1 on the season, hosts Class 3A No. 2 Salem on Saturday. The Cubs then travel to Southwestern on Wednesday.

at 195. The third win came courtesy of Brandon Smith, who gutted out an 11-2 win over Luke McCarty at 145.

"We did really well for a young team. We've got a lot of freshman," Gross said. "We've got one senior that has been with me since little league and two others that have wrestled for about a year or two. They'll get better and with the younger guys, they get upset with themselves and I tell them they'll get better. They've got the strength, they just don't have the endurance yet. But we'll work on it."

Madison returns to action on Friday when it competes in the Friday Night Duals at Switzerland County. Southwestern squares off against Brown County and Scottsburg at Scottsburg on Saturday.

IZZY

Izzy is a very loving and friendly 3-year-old male domestic short hair. He was brought in with two teenage cats. He had to go to the doctor because of being very dehydrated but is doing great now. He is now looking for a fur-ever home. He is fun, playful and could play all day but also loves to be lazy and take catnaps.

PETS OF THE WEEK

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter now has nine dogs or puppies, and 23 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com

Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is animal.shelter39@jefferson-county.in.gov

All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spayed or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "Woof-Trax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

BENFORD AND MAX

Benford was brought to the shelter with his brother Max. Benford is a loving and very energetic male who loves to get attention. Max is also loving and energetic despite having just three legs. That doesn't stop him from running and playing. They would like to be adopted together.

Charlie's Angels (PG-13): When a young systems engineer blows the whistle on a dangerous technology, Charlie's Angels are called into action, putting their lives on the line to protect us all. This movie stars Kristin Stewart, Naomi Scott and Ella Balinska. (Runtime 1 hour, 58 minutes)

Doctor Sleep (R): Years following the events of "The Shining," a now-adult Dan Torrance must protect a young girl with similar powers from a cult known as The True Knot, who prey on children with powers to remain immortal. This movie stars Ewan McGregor, Rebecca Ferguson and Kyliegh Curran. (Runtime 2 hours, 32 minutes)

Last Christmas (PG-13): Kate is a young woman who makes bad decisions. Her last disaster? That of having accepted to work as Santa's elf for a department store. However, she meets Tom there. Her life takes a new turn. For Kate, it seems too good to be true. This movie stars Madison Ingoldsby, Emma Thompson and Boris Isakovic. (Runtime 1 hour, 43 minutes)

Playing with Fire (PG): A crew of rugged firefighters meet their match when attempting to rescue three rambunctious kids. This movie stars John Cena, Keegan-Michael Key and John Leguizamo. (Runtime 1 hour, 36 minutes)

Zombieland: Double Tap (R): Columbus, Tallahassee, Wichita and Little Rock move to the American heartland as they face off against evolved zombies, fellow survivors and the growing pains of the snarky makeshift family. This movie stars Woody Harrelson, Jesse Eisenberg and Emma Stone. (Runtime 1 hour, 39 minutes)

Saying no to hosting duties

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: Christmas is around the corner, and my mother has asked me to host Christmas at my house. (Roughly 30 people will be there.) I do not feel my house is big enough, and hosting an event at my house gives me extreme anxiety! I hosted last year, but only because I was guilted into doing so. My house is just average size, but it's the largest of my sisters' and mother's. While everyone seems to be having a good time, I'm constantly worried about how cramped we are, how messy my house is getting, if there's enough food, etc.

I can't enjoy myself. I really do not want to host again, but don't know what to tell them. Please help. — Not Feeling the Christmas Spirit

Dear Not Feeling: The magic word is "No." It really is that simple. And though you truly don't owe anyone an explanation, you have an easy one to reach for, if you must: You hosted last year. It's someone else's turn. Let them huff, hem and haw, and sort it out amongst themselves. But stand your ground. If you agree to host again and end up resentful, you'll only have yourself to blame.

Dear Annie: I'm trying to figure out how the dynamics of the dating world work. I'm 62. I met a lady not long ago and she seems really interested in me. In my younger years, I might have flirted back and encouraged the young lady's affections. But at my age, I'm not interested in leading anyone on. I would like to just be friends with this woman. If she wants more, what should I do? Any advice? — Not Interested

Dear Not Interested: The kindest thing that you can do is to nip this woman's interest in the bud before it blossoms into a bigger crush. The next time you're speaking with her one on one, whether in person or over the phone, gently say something to the effect of: "I feel I should mention that I'm not interested in dating, but I think you're terrific and would love to become better friends, if you're up for that." Will it be slightly awkward? Yes, but only for a moment, and you'll breathe easier afterward knowing you've been honest.

Dear Annie: Recently, you responded to a reader with some walking tips for safety. Please add that walkers should wear reflective clothing so that they will be seen. (White/light-colored clothing does not count as reflective.) Far too often, when driving to and from work, I see people out walking in dark-colored clothing. The only reason I haven't hit one is that I am paying close attention. This is especially important with time changes and longer periods of darkness.

I wear a reflective vest and my dog wears a flashing reflective harness when we walk. I'd rather be safe than sorry. — MJ from Massachusetts

Dear MJ from Massachusetts: Indeed your advice is especially relevant as we've now entered those dreadful months when it's dark by 5 p.m. Reflective vests are affordable (around $8 online and at stores such as Walmart and Dick's Sporting Goods) yet priceless in the protection they might afford. I love that you have a reflective harness for your pup, as well, and would encourage anyone who walks a dog at night to take such measures.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book – featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette – is available as a paperback and e-book. Go to http://www.creatorspublishing.com for more information. Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.

HMI scholarship open

Historic Madison Inc. is now accepting applications for the John and Maureen Galvin/Historic Madison Scholarship.

Historic Madison Inc. was founded in 1960 and is one of Indiana's oldest historic preservation organizations. John Galvin served as president from 1981 to 2010.

Under his leadership, Historic Madison helped support the preservation and improvement of Madison's historic district, which led to Madison attaining status as a National Historic Landmark District.

The scholarship award honors Galvin's community- and preservation-related successes while recognizing Maureen Galvin's support for the encouragement of these worthy accomplishments in the hopes of inspiring future generations of preservationists, architects and historians to do likewise.

The scholarship will be awarded to qualified high school seniors pursuing a degree in historic preservation, architecture, American History or a related field who will graduate from a high school in Jefferson County, Indiana.

Scholarship recipients will be selected by a committee approved by the Board of Directors of Historic Madison.

Selections will be based on application materials, academic performance, a demonstrated interest in the related field, such as internship, volunteer work, community service, etc.

Interested applicants should contact their school guidance counselors to obtain an application. Applications are due Feb. 3, 2020.

For more information, contact Historic Madison, Inc. at rhonda@historicmadisoninc.com

BRIDGE

MOVE UP THE LADDER OF DECLARER-PLAY

In 2009, Barbara Seagram and David Bird published "Planning the Play of a Bridge Hand." Now they have written a sequel, "Planning the Play, the Next Level" (both Master Point Press).

There are 13 chapters under three generic headings: useful techniques, taking precautions and planning a strategy. After each deal, there is a plan synopsis; and every chapter ends with a quiz. Finally, the concluding chapter contains 26 problems. This book will help you learn how to marshal your thoughts when the dummy comes down.

In today's deal, how should South play in four hearts after West leads the spade two, and East puts up the queen?

South's jump to game is a slight overbid, but all of his honors are working. (It would have been different if North had opened one club.)

This contract looks easy. Assuming trumps are not 4-0, there seem to be 10 tricks from one spade, three hearts, four diamonds, one club and a club ruff on the board. What can go wrong?

Well, suppose declarer takes the first trick, cashes the heart ace and leads another trump. Here, South immediately loses two hearts and two spades.

The spade two is unlikely to be a singleton. With five strong spades, East might well have bid one spade, and his spade queen would have been a timely falsecard.

Declarer should duck the first trick. If East returns his second spade, South wins the trick, takes the heart ace and plays another heart. West cannot get in to cash a spade, and declarer eventually pitches his third spade on dummy's fourth diamond.
